Flamenco is the best word to define the Alhambra guitar 3 F model.

A wonderful tone, slightly brighter overall than a classical guitar and with a tremendous sound.

The strumming with this guitar sounds in a surprising way, very flamenco, "percussive" and with good volume.

In addition, the melody is very well defined and the basses as well, although being powerful, they are very balanced.

The 3 F model is an instrument of the student line, comfortable, with very good performance and with an exceptional value for money.

A good choice for anyone who starts in the study of flamenco style.

With a solid German Spruce top and a light color of Sicomoro used for back and sides, the Alhambra 3 F model has a very flamenco aesthetic.

It is an instrument very similar to the 4 F model but in this case with a nickel plated machine heads, Indian Rosewood fingerboard and clear color for the body.

A very comfortable model which for sure it meets the demands of a flamenco interpreter.

It comes with an extra saddle

The 3 F model comes with an extra saddle to be able to choose between a string action low or something higher, to adapt it to the tastes of the guitarist.

Both heights are totally adapted to the guitar, that way the buzzing is reasonable and it also ensures comfort in the performance. Designed to move quickly through the fingerboard.

Both the saddle and the nut are made of melamine, a material that is highly conductive to the sound and helps to balance the sound in the instrument.
